DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

2. Claims 1-9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

The claims are considered vague and indefinite for the following reasons:

- (a) It is unclear if the limitations in the parenthesis in claims 1 and 5 are positively recited in the claims.
- (b) The dependent claims not specifically mentioned are rejected as being dependent upon a rejected base claim since they inherently contain the same deficiencies therein.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 1, 4, 5, 6 and 9 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Baillie (U.S. 5,472,274) in view of Johnson (U.S. 205,486). Baillie teaches a beverage container 12 including a body member 14 with at top end 20 and cooling member 40 detachably engageable with the body member. The body member is capable of holding a beverage, as stated in col. 3 lines 48-50. The cooling member contains a cooling agent, as stated in col.4 lines 38-54. The cooling member is engaged element 26 which closes a major portion of said top end of said body member. The cooling member extends into an interior cavity of said body member, as shown in figure 1. The cooling member includes vessel member 42 and a top closure member 26 which engage via threads shown in figure 6.

Baillie discloses the claimed invention except for the volume of the vessel being less than the volume of the cooling member. Johnson teaches that it is known to provide a cooling member wherein the volume of the vessel is less than the volume of the cooling member (see domed portion c). It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide the beverage container of Baillie with the volume of the vessel being less than the volume of the cooling member, as taught by Johnson, in order to allow for a greater amount of cooling agent.

Regarding claims 4 and 9, the modified container of Baillie does not teach that the vessel is metal. Johnson teaches that it is known to provide a vessel made of metal. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide the modified beverage container of Baillie with the vessel being made of metal, as taught by Johnson, in order to use a strong and durable material for the vessel.

5. Claims 2, 3, 7 and 8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Baillie (U.S. 5,472,274) in view of Johnson (U.S. 205,486), as applied to claims 1 and 5 above, and further in view of Svehaug (U.S. 5,435,256). The modified container of Baillie discloses the claimed invention except for the seal. Svehaug teaches that it is known to provide a seal on an inner vessel (see element 30). It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide the modified container of Baillie with the seal, as taught by Johnson, in order to prevent leakage of the contents within the vessel.

Conclusion

6. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. The prior art is cited for the secondary compartment of the vessel.
7. THIS ACTION IS NON-FINAL.
